

A man has a lot of extra food.
He chooses to build bigger barns to hold the food instead of sharing it with other people.

A boy has two extra cookies. He chooses to give the cookies to two of his friends.

A girl gets two dolls for her birthday. She chooses to give one of the dolls to her little sister.

A boy has three coats. He chooses to give one of his coats to help children who don't have a coat.

A girl has four packs of crayons, but she won't share them with her friends so they can color and draw, too.

A boy is playing outside with his toy trucks. He has a lot of them, but when his friends want to play with him, he won't share any of them.

A girl has so much candy left over after Christmas. Instead of keeping it all for herself, she makes little candy bags and hands them out to her neighbors.

A boy has two nice backpacks for school. He gives one of the backpacks to a boy at school who doesn't have one. He even put some school supplies inside of it!